BINGHAMTON, N.Y.

Cryomedical Sciences, Inc. (BULLETIN BOARD: BLFS) announced that effective September 30, 2002, the Company has changed its name to BioLife Solutions, Inc. and will begin to trade under the new symbol, "BLFS."

The name and symbol change completes BioLife's restructuring, which began in May 2002, with the sale of the Company's cryosurgical assets, and reflects its renewed focus as a developer and marketer of proprietary cell preservation technology to biotechnology companies worldwide.

President and CEO John Baust, Ph.D., commented, "BioLife Solutions better reflects the refocus of the Company's resources on our founding HypoThermosol® technology, a line of customized preservation solutions which significantly prolong cell, tissue and organ viability. We believe we are well positioned to take advantage of the numerous opportunities in this important and emerging area of biomedical technology and are committed to bringing the Company to profitability."

About BioLife Solutions, Inc.

BioLife Solutions has pioneered the next generation of preservation solutions designed to maintain the viability and health of cellular matter and tissues during freezing, transportation and storage. Based on the Company's proprietary bio-packaging technology and a patented understanding of the mechanism of cellular damage and death, these products enable the biotechnology and medical community to address a growing problem that exists today. The expanding practice of cell and gene therapy has created a need for products that ensure the biological viability of mammalian cell and tissue material during transportation and storage. The HypoThermosol® and CryoStor™ products that the Company is selling today are a significant step forward in meeting these needs.
